Capital Food Bank: During ordinary operations, the food bank distributes most of its food through a network of 450+ regional nonprofit partner organizations. This partner network continues to be essential in this time. However, while many of these organizations plan to remain open in the coming weeks, a significant number of our partners have also suspended service. We have identified several partners throughout our region that have committed to remaining open alongside the food bank. These partners will serve as regional hubs, distributing food to additional clients who would ordinarily go to other locations in the region to seek help.

Food for Others: Food for Others is an important part of Northern Virginia's safety net for those needing food when an emergency strikes and for the growing number of working poor who need to supplement their inadequate food supplies. Food for Others obtains much of its food through food rescue operations and food drives. Staff and volunteers pick up good food that would have been discarded by local grocery stores and other retail food establishments. The food is brought to the warehouse for temporary storage, including refrigeration as appropriate. Food drives provide the majority of our non-perishable food.
